

Integromics™ is a Spanish-based leading provider of software solutions for Genomics, Proteomics and Drug Discovery in two strategic areas: data management and integration as well as intelligent data analysis and data mining. Integromics™ Is committed to be a key player in the transition from Information to Knowledge in the post genomic era, developing new software tools enabling the efficient organization of vast and varied types of data, as well as their analysis and mining so that new knowledge emerges. The software solutions in microarray management and in RT-PCR and microarray data analysis is provided in strong partnership with leading global Life Sciences companies. From its scientific base, Integromics™ offers its clients a deep and current understanding of challenges, initiatives and solutions related to the great field of functional genomics.

Currently we are offering the following opportunity:

Software Quality Tester/Engineer

You have a solid background in software quality engineering, testing and software development process. You like team work and you feel confident working in an international environment. You like to have the opportunity to define and implement new mechanisms and process to assure the quality of the software products and to adapt the process to the new projects.

Requirements

- Technical Computer Science Engineer or similar;
- Experience in Test Management.
- Experience in unit, functional, regression and performance testing.
- Experience in testing automation, and testing tools:
- Background and experience in Software engineering: development process like RUP, eXtreme programming, etc...
- Good Command of written and spoken English

Extra

- Good command of java, c++, c# languages
- Experience in application of quality standards: CMMI, ISO, 6 Sigma

Location: Granada Office, Spain

Please, send CV to rrhh@integromics.com and specify the code ST01 for the position in the subject line.

